

CACHADA

Q and A with the Director of Cachada

Moderated by Prof. John Williams and Prof. Yuko Otsuka from DES (Department of English Studies).

On March the 3rd from 10 am Director Marlén Viñayo will join us from El Salvador to talk about her wonderful film, Cachada.

In El Salvador, five single mothers who make their livings as street vendors participate in a performance workshop, forming the troupe “La Cachada” with their instructor. As rehearsals progress, they come to confront their lives—bound up in the cycles of unjust violence against women that their whole society tolerates. The women’ s acting is playful, despite the torment concealed in their bodies. Will they be able to overcome the trauma instilled within? Following La Cachada for over a year and a half, Marlén Viñayo took these women as the subject of her first feature-length work. Their captivating lives fill the screen.
