講演者プロフィール

Tristanne Connolly is Associate Professor in the English Department of St Jerome's University in the University of Waterloo. She is the author of William Blake and the Body (2002) and various essays on Blake, Erasmus Darwin, Romantic women poets, maternity, sexuality, and religion. She is the editor of several essay collections, most recently Sexy Blake (with Helen Bruder, 2013) and British Romanticism in European Perspective (with Steve Clark, forthcoming 2015). Her current research interests include the interrelations of science, sexuality and aesthetics in Romantic period writing.
